MARY BALDWIN

Vol. XXXIII No. 3 Fall 1984

Dr. Lester will step down as MBC president

(Editor's note: The following story was carried by the Associated Press.)

Dr. Virginia L. Lester announced October 20 that she will resign as president of Mary Baldwin College in June.

Dr. Lester, who has headed the college since 1976, told the school's board of trustees she is leaving to "complete a bit of unfinished business."

She said she would leave the college in June to enter "a nationally ranked law school."

"I am excited and energized by the unknown vistas that lie ahead," she told the board of her law-career decision.

In a prepared statement, the president said that her decision was a personal one made two years ago when she signed a three-year contract with the college.

MBC Trustees, in Staunton for their semi-annual meeting, lauded Dr. Lester for her years of service to the college.

"The college must carry on and foster the standards Virginia Lester introduced," said Chairman Rosemarie Sena of New York City.

Dr. Lester's record of accomplishment at MBC has gained national recognition for herself and the college.

A 1983 college president's survey by U.S. News and World Report ranked Mary Baldwin among the top regional liberal arts colleges.

In national studies, Harvard educator David Riesman and the National Center for Higher Education Management cited Dr. Lester for "effective academic leadership."

Since she arrived at MBC eight years ago, the college's progress and national recognition have been notable. Enrollment is up sharply, due in large part to the Adult Degree Program, an early effort of Dr. Lester.

The college's endowment has tripled, annual giving has doubled, and financial and administrative controls have been put into place with new curricular offerings.

The size of the college was tripled in 1977 with Dr. Lester's acquisition of the defunct Staunton Military Academy property adjacent to the MBC campus.

The president's most recent innovation at the college has been the establishment this year of a Program for Exceptionally Gifted students.

Dr. Lester succeeded Dr. William W. Kelly, who accepted a similar position at Transylvania University in Lexington, Ky. She was serving as acting dean of the Statewide Division of Empire State College of the State University of New York at the time of her appointment.

A search committee to seek Dr. Lester's successor has been named.

Sun Shines on Major Autumn Weekend

The weekend of Oct. 13 was a busy and productive one on the MBC campus, as participants in the Alumnae Leadership Conference and the annual Founders' Day Convocation gathered in Staunton.

The brilliant Autumn weather provided an appropriate backdrop to the workshops, conferences and ceremonies that ran from Thursday night until Sunday morning.

Members of the Alumnae Board and Parents Council arrived Thursday and worked all day Friday, meeting jointly with new members of the Advisory Board of Visitors.

By the time the conference was completed Sunday, its participants were thanked by Lee Johnston Foster '75, Director of Alumnae Activities, for "a very successful weekend."

ADVISORY BOARD OF VISITORS

Following dinner and individual executive committee meetings Thursday night, conference participants went through an orientation session Friday morning in the Student Activities Center.

The session included a student and an administrative panel, the latter consisting of Dr. Irene Hecht, Dean of the College, Dr. Nancy Kane, Dean of Students, and Admissions Director Clair Carter Bell.

Those who participated in the discussion had high praise for both students and administrators.

Other College officials were introduced at the opening session of the ABV later in the morning, and committee meetings were held that afternoon following a career services lunch for students.

Individual groups met in Deming Hall to discuss admissions, development, career planning and communications for the rest of the day.

On Friday night, all conference participants gathered at the home of Director of Special Projects George McCune and his wife Betsy for an evening of what everyone agreed was unsurpassed hospitality on the part of the host and hostess.

On Saturday morning, Dr. Virginia Lester, President of the College, presented her annual State of the College Address in Francis Auditorium.

The president spoke of the "complexity and immediacy" of the challenge the College faces in the coming decade, when statistics show the pool of potential applicants will decrease, and said objectives in all areas must be planned to meet the challeoge.

"If we continue to hold ooto the status quo, it will not see us through the decade," she said. "Planning is the exercise of deliberate power. We are powerful, and we plan to stay that way."

After a second geoeral session that morning, Dr. Lester hosted a reception for all participating groups in Spencer Lounge.

The Parents Council met in special session Saturday afternoon, and with studeots and ABV members for an "Academics in Action" meeting in Francis Auditorium.

All weekend participants gathered Saturday night for a reception and dinoer, featuring recipes prepared from the "From Ham to Jam" cookbook, and followed by a party in "Ye Merry Be" pub.

ALUMNAE LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE

The Alumnae Board got down to business Friday afternoon with a presentation on the Adult Degree Program by ADP Director Jim Harrington and meetings of the board's standing commitees.

Commitees on admissions, annual giving, chapter development, continuing education, finance, homecoming and nominating met on various parts of the campus throughout the afternoon.

ALC workshops were held Saturday afternoon for admissions area coordinators, chapter presidents, and reunion class chairmen.

Between Saturday's dinner and the pub party that followed, the board held a lengthy executive committee meeting in preparation for the final session Sunday morning.

During the last meeting, the group passed several goals related to annual giving at the College, including 100 percent board participation in the annual fund.

In other action, the group voted to appoint two ad hoc committees; one to study the feasibility of developing a marketing plan for alumnae board members to use in the future, and the other to study the incorporation of Adult Degree Program graduates in alumnae activities.

A major area of discussion was the development of a "concrete network of Mary Baldwin connections" for listing in a book to be used by graduating seniors as they plan their career.

FOUNDERS' DAY

In the midst of the conference and workshops, the annual Founders' Day Convocation was held in the Student Activities Center, filled to capacity with spectators and parents.

The featured speaker, former Virginia Delegate Joan S. Jones, spoke on "A Celebration of Women."

Mrs. Jones encouraged the newly-invested senior class members to establish goals and pursue them, mentioning prominent American women as Eleanor Roosevelt, Sally Ride and Millicent Fenwick as examples.

She praised the College's founders, Rufus W. Bailey and Mary Julia Baldwin, for their farsightedness.

"Celebrate women? Of course they did," she said of the founders. "At the time, it was written that 'women are just as remarkable as the other half of the human world'."

In addition to the investiture of seniors, other honors and awards were presented at the ceremonies in the SAC.

The Alumnae Chapter Achievement Award, bestowed for the first time since 1968, was presented to both the Atlanta Chapter and the Eastern Shore Chapter.

Alumnae President Leigh Yates Farmer '74 praised all the alumnae chapters for their "outstanding job of

Enthusiastic students return to campus

Once you've seen one freshman class arrive on campus, you've seen them all, right? Wrong.

This year's 210 freshmen who arrived in Staunton for orientation the week before Labor Day, are, according to Dean of Students Nancy Kane, "one of the most enthusiastic groups of students we've had on campus."

They're well qualified, too, with the Admissions Office reportiog SAT scores up 12 points from last year's class, an improvement three times the natiooal average.

The "Orient Express," the theme for this year's orientation, tracked oew students through academic counseling, testing and registration.

Six new faculty on campus

WILLIAM BLAKELEY

William Blakeley, assistant professor of business and administrative studies, says he finds MBC to be "a friendly, comfortable campus."

No stranger to the Shenandoah Valley, Blakeley received his B.A. from Virginia Military Institute in 1964 and later earned an M.S. from the University of Southern California and M.A. from Claremont Graduate School.

His special areas of interest are in systems management and management and administration. He has previously taught at VMI, the University of Virginia, and in MBC's Adult Degree Program.

Blakeley says that his teaching experience has shown him that "most business students know what they want to do; I'm looking forward to helping them with their career preparation."

He says that business courses are essential to a liberal arts education by broadening career opportunities and complementing other major skills.

MICHAEL DENNIS

"There is a creative challenge to doing a complicated job well," says Michael Dennis, the new assistant professor of communications, and he should know.

Dr. Dennis comes to MBC with nine years experience in broadcast engineering and production, including a stint at WTTG, the Metromedia station in Washington, D.C.

He has been involved in numerous broadcasts, including "Face the Nation," "The CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkite," and "The NFL Game of the Week."

He has also worked with numerous entertainers, among them Tony Bennett, Judy Collins, Jimmy Durante and the San Francisco-based rock group Jefferson Airplane and The Grateful Dead.

In broadcasting, Dr. Dennis says he prefers working with "whatever the most interesting part of the show comes in" such as lighting, camera and audio.

A native of Middletown, Ohio, he received his B.F.A. in radio-television from the University of Cincinnati, and his M.Ed. and Ph.D. from U.Va., where he served on the research faculty for two years.

At Mary Baldwin, he teaches Mass Media Law, Script Writing & Editing and T.V. Production.

STEVENS GARLICK

Stevens Garlick says he finds his new job as an assistant professor in the Adult Degree Program an exciting opportunity after 14 years in more traditional educational positions.

Dr. Garlick received his B.A. in German from Harvard College and his Ph.D. from Stanford University. He has previously taught at Pomona College in California and at Middlebury College in Vermont, where he directed the M.A. program abroad at Gutenberg University in Mainz, Germany.

Prior to arriving at Mary Baldwin, he taught at the College of Wooster in Ohio.

Dr. Garlick says he considers the ADP a unique opportunity for himself as well as the participating adults.

He says he has been impressed by the camaraderie among staff members. "I can honestly say I've never encountered a more congenial group of people," he says.

Dr. Garlick, a singer, says he shares a love of classical music with his wife, who still teaches in Ohio, and who is a conductor and clarinetist.

CHRISTINE GARRISON

Christine Garrison does not shy away from the task of putting together a program for which no model exists. In fact, she relishes the challenge.

"The possibility of developing something new, that hasn't been done before, really attracted me to Mary Baldwin," says Ms. Garrison, who is directing MBC's Program for the Exceptionally Gifted (PEG).

She comes to Staunton from Charlottesville, Va., where she was Supervisor of Gifted and Talented for Albemarle County schools. She was also an adjunct faculty member of the Educational Psychology Department at the University of Virginia, where she has taught courses in administration and education of the gifted student.

Ms. Garrison graduated from Skidmore College and received her master's in administration and supervision from U.Va. Her doctoral work pertained to special programs for the gifted.

She says the possibility of working with gifted female students was one of the reasons she came to Mary Baldwin.

"Exceptionally gifted girls are neglected in traditional schools," she says. "Their potential is not easily recognized, and is rarely encouraged enough."

These students' talents can be better nurtured in a single-sex environment, she says, adding that she looks forward to blending the program at MBC with Stuart Hall, the private girl's school in Staunton.

"The possibility of bringing two institutions that have similarities and differences together for a common goal is a challenge I look forward to," she says.

JAMES GILMAN

An assistant professor of religion and philosophy, James Gilman says he enjoys teaching and that philosophy goes hand-in-hand with a liberal arts education.

"Philosophy fits well into the program at Mary Baldwin since critical thinking is crucial to liberal arts," he says.

A native of Seattle, Dr. Gilman is a newcomer to the Staunton area. He received a B.A. from Seattle Pacific University, a M.Div. from Denver Theological Seminary, an M.A. from the University of Colorado, and an M.Phil. and Ph.D. from Drew University.

For the last three years he was an assistant professor at Palm Beach Atlantic College in Florida, and says he likes the friendliness of smaller campuses.

His interests include backpacking, opportunities for which are slightly better in Virginia than in Florida, and reading, especially contemporary poetry.

Dr. Gilman says taking a philosophy course is worthwile investment. "Everyone can acquire the basic tools of critical thinking, which can be applied to any other subject," he says.

PATRICIA WESTHAFER

After five years as an adjunct faculty member, Patricia Westhafer has joined Mary Baldwin in a full-time position as assistant professor of education.

A life-long resident of Staunton, Mrs. Westhafer says she was thrilled to come on board the faculty full-time.

"I'm very excited and enjoy it a great deal," she says. "I feel like I can put more of my energies into teaching."

Mrs. Westhafer received a B.S. in Elementary Education from James Madison University, an M.Ed. from the University of Virginia, and is currently an Ed.D. candidate at U.Va.

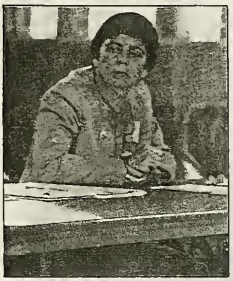
She taught in Staunton public schools for seven years, and for the last five years has worked as a consultant to the Stuart Hall Gifted Program.

In teaching students from MBC, the Adult Degree Program and Washington and Lee University, Mrs. Westhafer teaches a more diverse group than perhaps some of her colleagues, which she enjoys.

She utilizes techniques such as games, simulations and peer teaching with her students.

"In these teaching methods, I do those things with my students on the same level they will when they have their own classrooms," she says.

"In going through this process, I'm doing for my students what I want them to do with theirs."



AUTUMN WEEKEND

promoting Mary Baldwin College."

Dr. Irene W.D. Hecht, Dean of the College, announced academic honors and achievements.

The Marguerite Hillhouse Scholarships, named in honor of the former dean of admissions and given to the returning students with the highest cumulative grade point average, were given to Jennelle C. Saunders '85, Susan Elizabeth Rose '86 and Alicia J. Keller and Mary Catherine German '87.

The Margaret Kabie Russell Award, given annually to a junior or senior with outstanding academic attainments, went to senior Karen Elizabeth Fleming.

Among the invested seniors, the following were welcomed into the Honor Scholar Society by Dean Hecht: Elizabeth T. Dickerson, Michelle C. Irvine, Jamie Barr McClure, Penny Kay McDaniel, Eleanor Grace Montague, Pamela J. Place, Delores Jean Rucker, Jane H. Saunders, Jennelle C. Saunders, Lora Anne Schneider, Danielle M. Spinelli, Susan Ann Stover and Cynthia Y. Wood.

Women's history project planned

What did reading novels, paying calls on the Sabbath and staying up past 10 p.m. all have in common? They were all forbidden in the 1876–77 Catalogue of the Augusta Female Seminary, Mary Baldwin's predecessor institution in the 19th century.

The Catalogue, and hundreds of other items illustrating the history of Virginia women will be featured in an important exhibit sponsored by the Virginia Women's Cultural History Project in Richmond this fall.

The exhibit will be featured Nov. 11–Dec. 23 at the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts, and then moves on to the Chrysler Museum in Norfolk (Feb. 7–March 17) and the Roanoke Museum of Fine Arts (April 18–June 6).

The Virginia Women's Cultural History Project, with headquarters at the Virginia Historical Society, was originated by First Lady Lynda Johnson Robb and is administered by a staff of historians, curators, archivists and museum specialists.

The first major comprehensive display of its kind in the Commonwealth, the exhibit is entitled "A Share of Honour: Virginia Women, 1600–1945."

The exhibit will initiate a series of state-wide symposiums to be held in Norfolk, Lynchburg, Abingdon, Ferrum, Harrisonburg and Fairfax during the winter.

ALUMNAE NEWS

Chapters in Action

Atlanta

The Atlanta Chapter, under the direction of president B. J. Felton '79, held planning meetings in August and September to finalize upcoming events. The September meeting was held at the home of Jo Avery Crowder '65, president-elect. Lee Johnston Foster '75, Director of Alumnae Activities, met with the group and gave an update on the College and chapter activities around the country.

On October 16 the Atlanta Chapter entertained area guidance counselors at a luncheon and information session at the home of Ray Castles Uttenhove '68. Plans for the function were organized by Susan Jones '78.

Columbia

Newly-elected officers of the Columbia Chapter, Eleanor Landstreet '73, president; Mary Wilson '83, vice-president; Katherine Jackson Anderson '80, secretary; Nancy Dana Theus '79, treasurer; Pam McCain '81 and Leigh Simmons Fisher '84, admissions area coordinators; and Anita Thee Graham '50, Alumnae Board representative, got together with Lee Johnston Foster '75, Director of Alumnae Activities, recently at Timothy's for a dinner meeting.

On September 25 Columbia-area alumnae were entertained at a luncheon at A. J.'s Restaurant. The College slide show and an update on Mary Baldwin were presented by Lee Foster. The chapter's newly-published directory was also disributed at that time.

Richmond

The Richmond Chapter's annual new student dessert was held in mid-August at the home of Bev Estes Bates '64. New freshmen and their parents, as well as officers in the Student Government Association from the Richmond area were invited.

Mary Kay Schorn Stainback '76, president of the Richmond Chapter, hosted the September board meeting at her home. At that time, plans were made for coming fall events.

The Richmond Chapter has again contributed $1,000 to the Richmond Scholarship Fund. This year's recipient is Mary Dark.

Roanoke

Roanoke alumnae enjoyed a reception celebrating the grand opening of the Roanoke Adult Degree Center in the Carlton Terrace Building in late September. Assisting with the serving at the reception were Sarah Belle Eason Parrott '73, Janet Gouldman Rutherford '75, Susan Pierce Lancaster '72, Bobbie Carden Hawkins '75, and Sue Lamb '84.

Southside Virginia

Southside Virginia alumnae enjoyed an "Apple Day" luncheon on October 16 hosted by Laura Price Dixon '78, chair of the group. Lee Johnston Foster '75, Director of Alumnae Activities, attended from the College presenting the slide show and giving an update on College programs.

Washington

A Potomac Riverboat Cruise was the highlight of summer activities for Washington area alumnae in mid-August. Organizing the event were Karen Weyher '77 and Susan Moomaw '80. Newly elected president of the Washington Chapter is Ann Allen '71.

Old Dominion Day Parties

Old Dominion Day parties have been celebrated in various areas around the country throughout the summer and early fall. Oklahoma City alumnae held an Old Dominion Day party in mid-August. Philadelphia alumnae participated in a Riverboat Cruise in late September, and San Diego alumnae joined other Virginia college and university alumni for a celebration in October.

Dallas

Dallas-area guidance counselors were entertained at a luncheon and information session on September 28 by the Dallas Chapter. Admissions Counselor, Katherine Yarid '83, met with the group, which was hosted by Cindy Henley '79. Newly elected co-chairs for the Dallas Chapter are Hollon Meaders Otte '75 and Joan Velten Hall '67.

Eastern Shore, Va.

Eastern Shore alumnae entertained new freshmen, returning students and prospective students from the area at a luncheon in August. Marjorie Loving McCaleb '65 hosted the event. She was assisted in the planning by Cecile Mears Turner '46 and Kate Scott Jacob '50.

Peninsula, Va.

Officers of the Peninsula Chapter met in early September to finalize plans for the coming months and to establish bylaws for the chapter. Letia McDaniel Drewry '78 is serving as president of the group for this year. An "Apple Day" luncheon was held at the home of Kam Bonfoey Burgdorf '61 on October 15. On October 16 an "Apple Day" wine and cheese party was held in the early evening for Peninsula alumnae at the home of Terry Huffman Allaum '75.

LEIGH'S LETTER

Having started my tenure as Alumnae Association President in July, I am excited about the many recent accomplishments of Mary Baldwin and of the Alumnae Association. I am also looking forward to leading the association during a time of continued growth and accomplishment.

On behalf of the Alumnae Association, I am pleased to announce a very special project which was launched this fall. With the ever-increasing cost of tuition, the need for scholarship aid becomes more necessary. To help meet this need, an Alumnae Scholarship Fund will be established with the proceeds of Mary Baldwin's Virginia Holiday Sampler Project.

Virginia Is For Lovers — remember this famous bumper sticker from the '70s? Virginia has now developed a new theme, We Have It Made In Virginia. Mary Baldwin's Alumnae Association is incorporating this idea in its nationwide fund-raising project centering on the direct-mail selling of Virginia-made foodstuffs and products.

The Alumnae Association is proud to be offering their own We Have It Made In Virginia promotion whose profits will provide funds for an Alumnae Scholarship Program. The program has been designed to gain momentum year after year to support alumnae scholarships both through local alumnae chapters and at the national level.

The Finance Committee, headed by Marcia McDonald Helms '72, spent many busy months researching and planning this project. They have chosen a wide array of items in both product and price diversity.

You received your brochure in the mail in time for holiday giving, and the response has been enthusiastic. Based on orders received so far, it looks like the project will reap a profit for scholarships even its first year.

Start planning for next year! Some items offered are appropriate year round, for both personal and business gift giving, and will be offered in future issues of Mary Julia's Cupboard.

So, enjoy quality products and support Mary Baldwin and the Alumnae Scholarship Fund. That way, we can really say, "We Have It Made In Virginia" at Mary Baldwin!

The weather was quite warm and summery, and the campus was buzzing with activity as the students unloaded cars, met roommates, bought textbooks and experienced Honor Council Orientation.

The process ran smoothly, and by the end of their first week, the new students were acclimated and settled.

Upperclassmen returned on Labor Day, Sept. 3, the day of registration, and the Lower Back Gallery of the Administration Building was full of students and faculty until early afternoon.

A picnic lunch was served on the lawn below the Student Activities Center, giving freshmen a chance to meet new faces and returning students the first opportunity to see one another.

A total of 846 degree-seeking students enrolled at Mary Baldwin this fall, including a record 220 matriculants in MBC's Adult Degree Program.

The ADP, the College's non-residential bachelor of arts program for adult men and women, showed a 25 percent increase over last year's enrollment.

This year's freshman class comes to campus from varied backgrounds.

The students represent such foreign countries as Japan, Argentina and Columbia, and 24 states. About half of the freshmen and transfers are from Virginia, with Texas and Maryland not far behind.

The Admissions Office reports that 67 percent of the freshmen attended public schools, a similar percentage to previous years.

Louise Priddie Donovan '08

Members of the Mary Baldwin community were saddened to learn of the death of Mrs. Louise Priddie Donovan '08 on Sept. 29 in New Rochelle, N.Y.

Mrs. Donovan, 94, was a former member of the Board of Trustees, a director of the Alumnae Board and one of the College's most generous benefactors over the years.

On Oct. 20, the Board of Trustees passed the following resolution:

WHEREAS, The friendship between Louise P. Donovan (Class of 1908) and Mary Baldwin College was of long standing and of special quality; and,

WHEREAS, Mrs. Donovan served the College in many important ways: to wit, member of the Board of Trustees (1959–1966), director of the Alumnae Association, loyal supporter, and benefactor; and,

WHEREAS, The College has previously bestowed upon her the Emily Smith Medallion, noting that

> . . . she has interwoven her life with that of the College. She helped launch the current development program and has been indefatigable in promoting the growth of the College. She has carried forth a heritage of association with Mary Baldwin following her mother, who was also an alumna and a personal friend of Mary Julia Baldwin. In her mother's honor, the Nena Wiess Priddie Scholarship was endowed and since then has helped deserving students complete their studies at Mary Baldwin.

WHEREAS, Mrs. Donovan's interest and generosity made possible the superb Nena Wiess Priddie '86 Art Center in the recently completed Bertie Murphy Deming Fine Arts Center; and

WHEREAS, Mrs. Donovan's devotion to the College is being carried on by her son, Daniel Gerald Donovan Jr., as a dedicated and loyal member of the Board of Trustees; now therefore be it

RESOLVED, That it is with a deep sense of loss that the Board of Trustees of Mary Baldwin College notes the passing of Mrs. Donovan on September 29, 1984, and again recognizes her exemplary loyalty, selfless devotion, and lifelong dedication to the College. Be it further

RESOLVED, That a copy of this resolution shall be conveyed to the family of Mrs. Donovan as an humble expression of our heartfelt condolences and lasting gratitude.

ADP Alumna edits W&L Law Review

Susan Palmer graduated from Mary Baldwin through the Adult Degree Program as part of a rather circuitous education that began with an early decision acceptance at MBC and has ended up as editor of the Washington and Lee Law Review.

"I left Mary Baldwin at the end of my sophomore year in 1974," says Susan, who will graduate from the W & L School of Law in May.

"I guess it was the thing to do at that time," she recalls. "I was restless and had begun to question the relevance of a liberal arts education, especially at a single-sex, church-related school."

She liked the Shenandoah Valley, and took a job at Rockingham National Bank in Harrisonburg after two years at MBC.

"It was part of my search for independence," she says.

Susan stayed with that job until 1976, the year she would have graduated from the College, and realized then that it was time to go back to school.

Her parents live in picturesque Hallowell, Maine, and Susan got a summer job at the University of Maine working in a government program dealing with criminal justice.

She enjoyed this line of work so well that she got a job with the U. Maine Police and went to school part-time for two years when she decided it was time to finally get her degree.

In 1980, she learned of Mary Baldwin's Adult Degree Program, wrote for more information, and took the program as a correspondence course.

"I think I get their long distance award," she says. "The only time I came to Virginia was to present an oral defense of my thesis. I don't think anyone else lived as far away as I did."

Susan is generous in her praise of ADP.

"I couldn't say enough nice things about the professors — they were so supportive," she says.

She says that law school has been "fun, challenging and a lot of work. It bears an amazing resemblance to The Paper Chase; it's very, very tough."

Being editor of the Law Review, a prestigious post, was attained through beginning as a writer, then, through a competition, an editor, and finally, in her senior year, editor-in-chief.

"Thank goodness I don't have to do this and work, too," she says of the job.

Next year, she plans to clerk for an appeals judge in New York's second judicial circuit for a year, after which she hopes to clerk for a United States Supreme Court Justice.

"I'm going to be applying for it, anyway," she says. "It's a long shot, but I would love to get some insight into how they reach some of their decisions."

In order to clerk, lawyers must apply to all justices in what Susan describes as a "tough competition." She is somewhat heartened by the fact that a recent W & L graduate has clerked in the office of Justice Lewis F. Powell, a W & L alumnus.

Louise McNamee '70 acting CEO at NYC ad firm

She left Mary Baldwin in 1970 with a B.A. in English, and this fall, 12 years later, Louise Rosette McNamee finds herself acting president and chief executive officer of one of the nation's leading advertising agencies.

By an ironic twist of fate, the self-described liberal Democrat ascended to the top earlier this year while her boss, James Travis, took a leave of absence to direct President Reagan's re-election advertising campaign.

The political aspect takes none of the joy of the job from her, however, as was evidenced in a telephone interview in October following a week spent in the Los Angeles office of Della Femina, Travisano & Partners.

She graduated from MBC after only three years, and moved to Manhattan with her husband, poet Thomas McNamee, with the intention of becoming a writer herself.

Classmates thrive in joint venture

Two members of Mary Baldwin's Class of 1980 went their separate ways following graduation, but have ended up partners in a unique and successful enterprise.

Cary Edel Nichols and Lynda Harrison Meredith, co-owners of Personal Laundry Services in Richmond, trace their friendship to their first college days.

"We met each other Day One at Mary Baldwin as freshmen — isn't that something? — and we've been friends ever since," says Cary.

After graduating, Cary, a native of Birmingham, Mich., moved to Richmond, where she was an assistant buyer and manager at Miller and Rhoads for two years.

Following that stint she worked at Montaldo's in Richmond as a bridal consultant when, a little more than a year ago, she and Lynda renewed acquaintance.

Lynda had been working as a paralegal in Norfolk and Savannah before moving to Richmond with her stockbroker husband Massie.

The two women got together and decided to go into business for themselves.

"We wanted to be independent, to do something for ourselves and to set our own hours," says Cary.

After considering the situation last fall, they came up with the idea of Personal Laundry Services, and say that one source of inspiration for the idea came from . . . guess where?

"We remembered how, as students at Mary Baldwin, we hated to do laundry, recalls Cary.

The women decided on the laundry service in January, and by March they had quit their respective jobs.

"Our idea was to get this business going, to work it up to a point and then slowly get out of it," says Cary, and they are already only putting in about 2–3 hours each day.

The women aren't content to merely bask in the success of their business. They say they have a new enterprise in the works, but won't give any details just yet.

In the meantime, it can be said truthfully that they are taking Richmond to the cleaners.

"In the beginning, I had no intention of going into advertising," she says. "At that time, ad agencies cared if you were smart and aggressive. Basically, I ended up doing research for Kelly, Nason & Univas.

"I found out I liked it — it was instant gratification to find out what works and see the results right away. It also appealed to my desire to be involved in lots of different businesses."

She remained with the firm for seven years, leaving it in 1979 as vice president and director of research and information services to assume the same post at Della Femina.

By the end of her first year, Louise was a senior vice president, and has since taken on greater strategic marketing and new-business responsibilities at the Madison Avenue firm.

As a researcher, she dislikes what she calls "report card research," testing that evaluates results after the ad campaign has been developed. She prefers "evolutionary research" which gives feedback to the advertising creators on various ideas as they're being developed.

Since becoming an executive vice president last year, Louise has been one of four members of Della Femina's management committee, the only female, and the only Democrat among a prominent group of Republicans.

In addition to Travis, the vice president of the agency is advising the Tuesday Team, the ad agency handling the Reagan effort, and the chairman of Della Femina was originally under consideration to head the group.

"It's ironic — I would be the last person in the world to help this re-election, and yet I am benefitting indirectly from Ronald Reagan," she says.

She chuckles good-naturedly when asked if she is better off today than she was fours years ago.

"We kid around about it a lot," she says of the political differences between herself and her colleagues.

She reiterates how much she enjoys her work.

"This is a particularly interesting time for women to be in high level business positions, although talking to other women I've found that it's not happening as fast as it ought to," she says.

Louise says she is grateful for her liberal arts background at Mary Baldwin.

"You can learn all the technical aspects of business after a year or two on the job," she says. "A good liberal arts education, however, teaches you how to think and solve problems on your own."

While she says the College was quite homogeneous during her time here ("It's difficult to be challenged when there's not a lot of diversity") she says she has learned to appreciate the school more as years go by.

"Mary Baldwin helped girls understand who they were and where they came from, and what that meant," she says. "The environment was helpful — it was good to be with other young women."

Travis will return to his job of president and CEO in December, at which time Louise will step down in that capacity, but not in much of her responsibility.

She says he will concentrate on long-range planning, while she will continue to be involved with the business aspects of the agency.

"There will be a realignment of titles in some manner, which I can't even tell you at the moment," she says with a laugh.

ALUMNAE SPOTLIGHTS

Jane Heywood Boylin '64 is currently serving as a director for American Junior League chairing the Area II Council. Jane and her family live in Huntington, W. Va., where she serves on the board of trustees of Huntington Galleries, as president of the Cammack School PTA, and is also a consultant and trainer in organizational development and volunteer management.

Continuing a successful acting career, Lisa Sloan's '74 latest film, "The River", will be released in late November. Mel Gibbons and Sissy Spacek star in the movie which was filmed on location in rural Tennessee. Lisa plays Sissy's best friend. Lisa spent several weeks in Staunton this past summer rehearsing for a Theatre Wagon production. Lisa and her husband, film editor Sidney Levin, are expecting their first child in November.

Dr. Margaret McNeese '67 is making a change in her medical career by serving as associate dean of student affairs at the University of Texas Medical School at Houston. She directs the pediatrics clinic at the San Jose Clinic and has been on the faculty at UT-Houston Medical School since 1976. Margaret is actively working to prevent child abuse, and was the 1983 Bert Coats Humanitarian Award recipient.

Mary Tompkins Miller '72 has recently been appointed a senior trust investment officer with the Bank of Virginia in Richmond. She is a portfolio manager in the Trust Company, specializing in estates and personal trusts. She is also a chartered financial analyst.

Elizabeth Jennings Shupe '70 has been appointed associate director of the West Virginia University Career Services Center. Elizabeth was formerly a career counselor with the Center, and academic advisor/counselor at Purdue University and assistant director of student life at MBC.

ANNUAL FUND REPORT 1983–84

Mary Baldwin College traditionally recognizes each year the special support received from alumnae, students, parents, and friends. We are grateful to those whose names appear in this Annual Fund Report. Thank you for making 1983–84 a record-breaking year.

THE HILL TOP CLUB

These donors of $5,000 or more to the Annual Fund provided leadership for the College. They give financial evidence of their love and respect for Mary Baldwin College and her students.

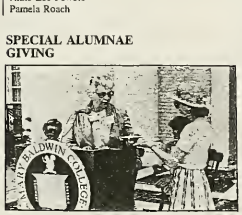
SPECIAL ALUMNAE GIVING



REUNION CLASS CONTRIBUTIONS

Class of 1934

Grace Crowe Bobo '34 presents the Class of 1934's 50th Reunion Class Gift to President Virginia L. Lester at Homecoming last June. The gift was a check for $1,822 to be donated to the Annual Fund.

Class of 1959

Anne McClung Anderson '59 presented to President Lester the Class of 1959's 25th Reunion Class Gift. The reunion gift was a check for $2,605 contributed to the Annual Fund. Unfortunately, a photograph of the event is unavailable.

1917

Susan Baughman Homar '74, last year's Alumnae Association president, presents the Fraser Bowl to Rachel Berry Mohler '46 who accepted the award on behalf of the Class of 1917. The Fraser Bowl, named after the College's first president, Dr. A.M. Fraser, is awarded to the class contributing the greatest amount to the Annual Fund.

1930

Bessie Conway Lewis '30 (left) and Mary (Manie) Grant '30 share the Jarman Cup awarded to the Class of 1930 for the highest class participation in the Annual Fund. The Class of 1930 was recipient of the Jarman Cup for both 1981–82 and 1982–83. The Cup is named after MBC's second president, Dr. L. Wilson Jarman.

1924

Mrs. Bruce Wiggin (left), wife of the late Dr. Frank Bell Lewis, the third president of Mary Baldwin, presents the Lewis Platter to the Class of 1924. Josephine Barkman Coleman '24 accepts the award for the greatest increase over the previous year of class contributions to the Annual Fund.

1932

For the Class of 1932, Virginia Maben Stokes '32 receives the Spencer Pitcher from Susan Baughman Homar '74. The award, named for Dr. Samuel Spencer, fifth president of the College, recognizes the class with the greatest increase over the previous year in participation in the Annual Fund.

CLASS OF 1984 SENIOR GIFT

In keeping with the tradition of the Senior Gift Society, the Class of 1984 contributed a gift to the College. The class donated $1,490 to the 1983–84 Annual Fund, and these funds went toward the refurnishing of Spencer Lounge. The Mary Baldwin community thanks the Class of 1984 for their gift. The College also thanks Mr. Kenneth S. Armstrong, Jr. for his contribution to this gift by establishing a challenge grant to encourage full Senior Class support.

SENIOR GIFT SOCIETY

The Senior Gift Society was founded by the Class of 1978 as a means of making a significant financial contribution to the College. Since then, membership in the Society has become a traditioo for all graduating classes. Each year seniors are challenged by past graduating classes to make a meaningful contributioo to Mary Baldwin College through a gift given by the class.

Members of each senior class decide upon the form of their class gift. The Classes of 1978, 1979, 1980, 1982, and 1983 established ongoing funds to which they contribute yearly. The Classes of 1981 and 1984 chose to support the current Annual Fund. The College is grateful for the loving support of all of its senior classes and wishes to acknowledge the following alumnae who contributed to their Senior Gift Society in 1983–84:

ADP Alumna Con't from p. 4

She says she would like to clerk for either Powell or Justice Sandra Day O'Connor.

One of her law review articles was used by an attorney in a brief before the High Court, a fact of which she is immensely proud.

And, Supreme Court or no, what future plans does she have?

"I'll probably go into private practice in a small town somewhere," she says. "Criminal prosecuting may be fascinating. And I'm very, very interested in Constitutional issues."

Whatever course she chooses, if her record is any indication, she will at the very least be thorough and persistent.

From Ham to Jam Cookbook:

MBC senior recalls summer spent in Bangladesh

When Elizabeth Selden stepped off the plane in Dhaka, Bangladesh last summer following her junior year at Mary Baldwin, she felt as if she'd entered another world.

Miss Selden participated in an experimental YMCA-sponsored program teaching English for two months in Bangladesh, and her initial experiences were not exactly heartening.

"Before I got to Dhaka, I had a bad experience at the airport in Bombay," she recalls. "There were a couple of doped-up Indians living in the place who attacked me."

One of the yellow-eyed heroin addicts grabbed her legs while the other proceeded to stretch out across her lap.

"I was all alone and scared to death and they attacked me," she exclaims. "They were so filthy and so nasty — I thought 'Where in the world am I going?' "

Fortunately, she was rescued by a passerby, but things didn't get any prettier once she reached her destination, exhausted and hungry.

Dhaka was in the midst of the monsoon season, and she didn't know who, if anyone, would meet her.

"Here I am surrounded by these derelict children selling hashish and opium, trying to buy me whiskey and cigarettes in this antique airport — it was unreal," she says.

A YMCA vehicle finally arrived to fetch her, and she was driven through the jungles on what appeared to be roads, stopping occasionally to let water buffalo cross.

"When we stopped, all these naked children crowded around the car and started beating on the window," she remembers. "I've never seen poverty like that. One little boy pressed his hands against the glass, and looked me straight in the eye, pleading and crying.

"I was overwhelmed — I was at my most vulnerable, and just started crying right there in the car, and didn't stop for hours. The driver told me not to look, but I couldn't help it."

Once situated in a monsoon-proof structure provided by the "Y", things began to look up a bit, and after a week she says she felt secure and happy.

"I wanted to stay over there. I was independent, and I felt like I was really doing something."

The feeling of freedom was tempered somewhat by what she described as the "total environment" of her surroundings.

"Being an American, there are certain things you become accustomed to, and these needs are not satisfied over there," she says. "There was no escape."

She was provided with a servant, a "teeny teeny little guy" who she says protected her like a princess and followed her around.

Miss Selden was not crazy about the cuisine in Dhaka, in which all foods are heavily curried.

"I became bored with it very quickly," she says, and ended up eating mostly local fruits.

During the day she taught English to upper-class university students who were bound for the West to further their education.

At night, she tutored for free anyone who asked, including village children, waiters at the local hotel and even a Pakistani terrorist. All of her students treated her with utmost respect, she says, bowing in her presence and calling her "madam."

During her stay she struck up a special friendship with one of the village waifs, whom she affectionately named "Baboo," and who at age three lived in the streets.

"When I first noticed him he was begging as I returned from market one day," she says. "I felt sorry for him and gave him a banana, and he immediately turned around and sold it for more than I'd paid for it."

She says she chastised him, calling him "a dirty rotten kid" as she smiled at him. Even though he spoke no English, he immediately understood and laughed mischieviously.

"He had no parents, he slept outdoors and his stomach was swollen, but he was the happiest kid you've ever met in your life," she says.

Miss Selden took it upon herself to see that the little boy ate properly, and they became great friends, calling each other "Baboo." Their communication was limited, but she did teach him the words to "Frere Jacques," training him to respond appropriately when she would call out the opening line "Are you sleeping?"

Her friendship with this little boy combined with her teaching experiences and the overall atmosphere of Bangladesh to make her want to explore Asia further.

A senior majoring in communications, Miss Selden has decided against pursuing a career in broadcast journalism. Instead, she hopes to eventually produce documentaries about various parts of the globe.

"I want to take the world in sections, and eventually decide which area I want to concentrate on."

The blonde-haired, blue-eyed Richmond native will join the Peace Corps, in Sri Lanka, she hopes, after she graduates. She admits she is uncertain how she will achieve her goal.

"It just feels right to be doing this," she says. "I don't have all the answers."

Her departure from Dhaka was tearful, but in a far different way than her traumatic arrival had been.

"I had been trying to tell Baboo that I was going away, but he didn't understand," she says. "I tried to sing "Are You Sleeping?" with him, but he wouldn't respond."

She had a car sent around to collect her belongings and take her to the airport, and as she got in she told him through her tears that she was going home.

"He was just laughing and playing with my nose," she says. "Then, when I was in the car, he just looked at me with those big brown eyes."

As the car pulled away, however, she looked back, and the little boy hunched down, shut his eyes and screamed "Are you sleeping?" at the top of his lungs, in customary fashion.

"That was great," she says, laughing. "It was the perfect ending."
